Dear Friends:

There are more than 20 million American veterans living in the United States today. They include Soldiers, Sailors, Airmen, Marines, and Coastguardsmen. They served our country from World War II through the present, and they are our family, friends, and neighbors.

Veterans Day is an opportunity for us to thank all of our servicemen and women. We owe EACH of them our gratitude and our vigilance, and it is up to us to preserve their legacy---to keep the Republic they fought to preserve. They serve and fight to defend the ideas engrained in one of the most exceptional documents ever written---our Constitution with Bill of Rights. This document has enshrined the best ideas for man's self-governance that the world has ever seen. And those ideas are what our veterans are sworn to protect, and why they make sacrifices for us.

As we gather at the beginning of Veterans Appreciation Week, let us give thanks for those who have shown us the ultimate value of this great nation. Let us honor them, and let us never forget their sacrifice, for they have proved that our American ideals are worth fighting for and sometimes dying for. I would also like to specially recognize the brave veterans of the Korean conflict who are gathered here today.

So on this day forward, however we are called to make our own sacrifices, may we be inspired by the example set by our veterans, and continue their efforts to protect and preserve our exceptional nation. May God bless you.... and the United States of America.

Sincerely,

U.S. Representative Todd Rokita
